Other events of an athletic nature that furnished much excitement were the tug of war between Fort Slocum and the Newbort Station teams, two boxing beats, a battle royal and the catching of the greased pig.

The flux of war was won by the Fort Slocum team in 2 1-2 seconds of heaving, rrunting and pulling after which the fluttering cambric eased over the line. The boxing which was held in an ideal and natural open arena, was good, all the box working to win and putting up a good battle. In the first so Atkins of Bockaway won the decision from fielding in a four-round bout. Atkins was too fast for Fielding and won on seints.
